ROMANS XII. 11.

NOT SLOTHFUL IN BUSINESS; FERVENT IN SPIRIT; SERVING THE LORD.

A Diligent performance of our duty in reſpect to ourſelves and others in that ſtation of life, in which the divine providence hath placed us; and a ſerious attention to the worſhip of our Creator, animated with a well informed and a well tempered zeal; both alike founded, not only on a conviction of the reaſonableneſs, utility, and moral obligation of theſe duties conſidered in themſelves, but on a regard alſo to the commands of our only Lord and Maſter JESUS CHRIST, who hath expreſſly required them at our hands: Theſe form the principal outlines of the character of a good Citizen and a good Chriſtian.

THE great object of this Society, and of our preſent meeting, is to promote theſe principles, and to diffuſe them more univerſally, in a Nation connected with us by all the charities, which can bind together two diſtinct kingdoms; by ſubjection to the ſame ſovereign power, to the ſame form of government; by a large intermixture of intereſts, of property, and even of blood; by every conciliating intercourſe, by every endearing relation; to awaken the Native Iriſh of the lower rank out of that torpid ſtate, in which their prejudices have ſo long held them; to call them forth, or by degrees at leaſt to lead them, from barbariſm to civility, from darkneſs to light, from bigotry to religion, from a ſlaviſh ſubjection to their prieſts, and an abject vaſſalage to the Pope, to the glorious liberty of the Goſpel; that they may become uſeful to themſelves and to the community, good ſubjects, rational Chriſtians, real Catholics, ſervants of GOD alone, and freemen of CHRIST. And theſe ends we are urged to purſue, in conſideration of our own as well as of their intereſts; by every motive whether private or public, whether prudential or charitable, whether political or religious.

THAT the native Iriſh, ſo cloſely connected with England, ſhould have continued for ſo many centuries, centuries, and should in some degree still continue, in such a state of darkness and barbarism, might seem incredible and inexplicable, were not the fact evident, and did not history point out to us the causes of it.

The fate of that nation has been somewhat singular, and the disadvantages, under which it has laboured, in a manner peculiar to itself. No time can be assigned within the period of certain history, in which Ireland had any favourable opportunity of making those improvements, which its natural capacity admitted, or its happy situation even pointed out. As it escaped the dominion of the Romans, so was it likewise deprived of the benefits, which their government generally introduced; order, laws, civility, cultivation: and being separated from other nations in a remote corner of the then known world, and unskilled in navigation, it had little inclination or opportunity to profit by intercourse with them.

We have indeed notices from undoubted history of a subsequent age, in which Ireland was celebrated for Literature and Sanctity. Learning, driven out of the rest of Europe, by the incursion of the Northern nations, seemed for a while to take refuge there; and from thence Letters and Religion were propagated to the neighbouring countries. But this bright age was of no long continuance:

continuance: the light of it was ſoon obſcured, and at laſt utterly extinguiſhed, by repeated invaſions of ſtill more northern barbarians. And it muſt alſo be obſerved, that their Learning at beſt was ſuch as could only have ſhined in dark times; and that their Religion conſiſted chiefly in the extravagant auſterities of the monaſtic life, unfavourable to improvement of every kind, as it encouraged and ſanctified inactivity, and conſidered the cultivation of the arts of civil life as profane, and even ſinful.

WHATEVER their former attainments might have been, the Engliſh certainly found them relapſed into a ſtate of extreme barbariſm, in reſpect of ſcience, manners, laws, and religion; without arts, without manufactures, and almoſt without agriculture, that firſt mark, and moſt eſſential part of civiliſation; in a country eminently fruitful, and abundantly ſupplied with every thing proper for the accommodation of its inhabitants, in a manner deſtitute of the conveniencies and even the neceſſaries of life. To this ſtate they were reduced by a perpetual ſucceſſion of domeſtic wars, between their ſeveral elective kings, under whom they were cantoned; and of foreign invaſions, to which they lay entirely open and expoſed: and whatever ſhort intervals there might be of either, public depredation only gave place to private rapine, and military law was only exchanged for tyranny or anarchy. Nor was their condition mended, when their diſſenſions had thrown them into the hands of the Engliſh: the ſame ſcenes of contentions, either among themſelves, or with their invaders, ſucceeded. In deſpite of many ſolemn acts of forced and inſincere ſubmiſſion, they perpetually revolted againſt an ill eſtabliſhed and ill ſupported, a weak and unſteady government; the effect of which was little more than to keep up their reſentment againſt their new governors ever freſh and keen, and to mature it at length into an inveterate hatred.

Thus for many centuries this unfortunate nation labour'd under all the diſadvantages of ſubjection to a ſuperior power, without partaking of any of the advantages, with which it is often accompanied. The conquerors even refuſed to impart the benefit and protection of their laws to the conquered. Unable to reduce them to order by force, they would not condeſcend to try the gentle but more powerful influence of benevolence; and, inſtead of reforming the natives, ſuffered even their own people, ſettled among them, to degenerate and become barbarians. The condition of the times, the manners of the people, were unfavourable to every kind of civil improvement. Thoſe, who are accuſtomed to live by rapine and plunder, always look upon manual labour, and the arts that depend on it, with contempt and aversion; and who, in a ſtate of civil confuſion, will beſtow his pains, the fruits of which he can have no reaſonable expectation of enjoying? Their very laws were calculated to extinguiſh every inclination to induſtry, by affording no ſecurity in the poſſeſſion of property, nor certainty of its deſcending by inheritance.

When the light of the Goſpel was reſumined by the Reformation, the ſame pillar of fire, which gave a guiding light to England, became a cloud and darkneſs to the Iriſh; making a ſtill greater ſeparation between both, ſo that one came not near the other. The reception of it by the former, was of itſelf a ſufficient reaſon for its being rejected by the latter. It threw them more irrecoverably into the arms of Rome; and made them ſeek alliances with every Popiſh nation, that could flatter them with promiſes of protection. Theſe connexions, formed ſo long ago, ſtill ſubſiſt: hence the conſtant ſupplies, which they afford to foreign armies; doubly deſtructive to their country, as they diminiſh its force, and at the ſame time increaſe the ſtrength of its enemies. The next age was unhappily diſtinguiſhed by diſcord and deva[illegible], more violent, and more general, by rebellions and maſſacres, by civil wars inflamed and heightened with religious fury; rendering ineffectual every approach, which had before been made, to order and government; imbittering and confirming old animosities, aggravating antient prejudices, and rendering them invincible.

The great era of British Liberty, the Revolution, marks the commencement of peace and prosperity to Ireland, after at least nine centuries of uninterrupted discord, confusion, and desolation. The way to happiness was then laid plainly open: but in so long a course of time, as hath passed since, what advances have been made towards it? Much less, than in reason might have been expected; even allowing to every obviating cause its full efficacy. Barbarism hath retreated with a slow pace: some remains of it at least still appear in the manners of the people, by its genuine marks, ferocity and indolence: outrageous acts of lawless violence, unheard of in any civilised country, are still frequently committed there; and hardly any other country bears on the face of it such plain indications of the bounty of God in imparting the gifts of nature, and of the sloth of man in neglecting to improve them.

Poverty, that more than Egyptian darkness, still covers the greater part of the land; a darkness, which may be sensibly felt in its pernicious effects and destructive consequences. It is the great obstacle, that stands in the way of every beneficial, ficial, every generous, design: it counteracts every principle, that leads to loyalty and true piety, to induſtry and uſeful knowledge, to national ſtrength, ſecurity, and happineſs. It inſpires its wretched votaries with a deteſtation of that government which protects them, becauſe it is adminiſtered by thoſe whom they call Uſurpers and Heretics; and makes them ready to join the enemies of their country, becauſe they call themſelves Catholics; a name perverted in the application to the very contrary of its true meaning. The love of their country being thus extinguiſhed in their breaſts, one of the ſtrongeſt incitements to the nobleſt exertions of the powers of body and mind is deſtroyed. Their underſtanding, ſubdued to the belief of groſs falſhoods, and habituated to abſurdities, is weakened and depraved; it becomes impervious to the light of truth, and callous to the force of argument. Intrenched in ignorance, and in a language of their own, little known to others, and difficult to be attained; inſlaved to the peculiar cuſtoms and ſuperſtitions of their anceſtors; fixed in an obſtinate adherence to hereditary errors, and a determined hatred of thoſe, whoſe duty it is to remove them; awed by the terrors of dreadful anathemas, and (in the caſe of Converts at leaſt) by the obligation of oaths *, binding them not to hearken hearken to reaſon, or yield to conviction; they render themſelves inacceſſible to human inſtruction, and give up their claim to the direction of the word of GOD: "Seeing they ſee not, neither do they perceive; and hearing they hear not, neither do they underſtand. The heart of this people is waxed groſs, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they cloſed; leſt they ſhould ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and underſtand with their heart, and ſhould be converted and healed."

EVERY ordinary remedy therefore having been found inadequate to the cure of this inveterate evil, recourſe was had to the Deſign of erecting Engliſh Proteſtant Schools in Ireland, "wherein the Children of Popiſh and other poor Natives of that Kingdom might be inſtructed in the Engliſh Tongue, and in the Principles of true Religion and Loyalty, and trained up to the practice of Induſtry and Labour:" a Deſign eſtabliſhed by the ſanction of Royal Authority, and carried on by this Society under the protection and ſupport of Royal and Parliamentary patronage.

THE wiſdom and juſtice, the utility and importance, of this Deſign, and the means of promoting it, the preſent occaſion requires, that I ſhould briefly propoſe to your conſideration.

IT is of the utmoſt importance to the well being of every Community, that proper care be taken of the riſing generation; that children be brought up in principles of Religion and Virtue; to habits of piety, honeſty, ſobriety, and induſtry; that they may become good men, and good citizens. This care is neceſſary in all caſes, and even in the moſt favourable circumſtances: ſhould they be abandoned to neglect, the conſequence will be, not only that ignorance and ſloth will take poſſeſſion of them, but a large train alſo of concomitant vices will enter in and dwell there, and make them wretched in themſelves, injurious to their neighbours, and miſchievous to mankind. But much more is this care neceſſary, when there is great and apparent hazard of their being corrupted and perverted to evil; where they are peculiarly expoſed to the influence of error and ſuperſtition, to the infuſion of bad principles and bad habits; where there is evident danger of their being made, not only uſeleſs, but pernicious, members of ſociety; not only bad ſubjects, but even enemies to their country. From theſe conſiderations therefore, the attention of the wiſeſt Legiſlators hath been juſtly engaged to provide for the proper education of children; to direct the general plan of it; and in ſome degree to controul the will of private perſons in ſo important a public concern. How far children children belong to the community, and are properly the children of the State; ſo that they may be taken into the care of the magiſtrate, even againſt the will and conſent of the parents, is a queſtion altogether unneceſſary on this occaſion to be diſcuſſed: every degree of conſtraint, which might appear inconſiſtent with the principles of civil liberty, on which the conſtitution of theſe kingdoms is founded, has been very properly avoided in forming this deſign. The Society uſes no compulſion: it takes no children under its care, but with the free conſent of the parents: it has no authority in this reſpect, but in the caſe of vagrant and deſerted children, whether born of Popiſh parents, or ſuch as might otherwiſe fall into the hands of Papiſts; and this authority it exerciſes with great moderation. It invites the parent by the manifeſt and undoubted advantages which it offers: by the benefit of relieving the parents themſelves from a preſent burthen; by the certain proſpect of the child's being well taken care of immediately, well maintained for ſome years, and made capable of getting a good livelihood in an honeſt employment for the reſt of his life. That ſo many have accepted of the invitation, notwithſtanding their own violent prejudices, and the prieſt's dreadful interdiction, is a clear proof of the great benefit and real advantage of the offer. And it may be ſuppoſed, that the antient cuſtom peculiar to this Nation, and which has univerſally prevailed in it, of giving their children to be bred up in other families rather than their own, though in ſome inſtances it has had miſchievous effects, may in this at leaſt have a favourable and uſeful influence; that the parents from this uſage may be better diſpoſed to commit their children to the Foſtering hands of the Society; and that the near relation, which ſuch adoption is eſteemed to create, may have a conciliating effect, and help to allay the animoſities even of religious party.

EVERY argument, which proves the importance and neceſſity of good education in general, and of the charitable education of the children of the poor in particular, may be urged in its full force in behalf of this deſign; and receives additional ſtrength from every peculiar circumſtance, that diſtinguiſhes it from others of a ſimilar kind. Its end is not merely to aſſiſt, to cheriſh, to improve, to furniſh with good principles and uſeful abilities; but even to gain, and in a manner to create, uſeful and good ſubjects to the community: it is to eradicate an evil, that lies at the very heart of the ſtate, that pervades the whole ſyſtem, and mixes with its vital blood; obſtructing its ſources of wealth, weakening its powers of defence, and rendering its ſafety always doubtful and precarious. Every lazy and uſeleſs member is a loſs to the nation:

every diſcontented Papiſt, that deſerts his country, and enters into the military ſervice of a foreign ſtate, is a real enemy: every bigoted zealot, that lies in wait at home for the diſtreſſes of his country, ready to join the firſt adverſe power that invades it, is the worſt, the moſt dangerous, the moſt implacable of all enemies. To convert theſe into good ſubjects, or, that being a deſperate attempt, to ſupply their places with good ſubjects in the next generation; this is a deſign not only beneficial and important to the welfare and proſperity of the ſtate, but eſſential even to its ſtability and exiſtence.

Every objection, which has been urged againſt Charity-Schools in general, hath in theſe been wiſely and happily obviated. Thoſe, being ſituated in populous Towns, (for ſuch muſt ordinarily be their ſituation,) are expoſed to all the corruptions with which ſuch places will abound: the children, collected from their ſeveral homes to attend the ſchool for certain portions of the day, will be apt to loſe in the commerce with their neighbourhood, and their own families, the good impreſſions, which they may have received at the ſchool; and domeſtic bad habits and bad example will render ineffectual the beſt public inſtruction. Theſe, ſituated for the moſt part in country Villages, are at a diſtance tance from the contagious intercouſe of the city; or, in the city itſelf, are ſecluded from all hurtful commerce with it; and the children, being removed as far as poſſible from their parents and relations, that they may not be in danger of being again perverted to Popery, are at the ſame time placed out of the way of temptation to many vices, to which they would too often be expoſed at home.

It has been frequently objected to our Charity-Schools in general, that the mode of inſtruction purſued in them is calculated to raiſe the objects of it above their proper rank in life, by giving them qualifications, and notions, and expectations, ſuperior to the ſtation to which they belong, and making them in theſe reſpects unfit for the loweſt and moſt laborious employments. It is beſide my purpoſe to inquire, whether this objection may not have been invidiouſly aggravated: it is ſufficient for me to obſerve, that it cannot be made here. The inſtruction of theſe children is ſufficient for all the purpoſes of the Inſtitution, without going beyond its due bounds: it is limited to reading, writing, and the firſt principles of Chriſtian knowledge: the time allotted to this inſtruction is properly circumſcribed; not quite a fourth part of the buſineſs of the day is aſſigned to it. The reſt is appropriated to manual labour, to agriculture, to gardening, to manufactures, to houſhold employments, to providing for themſelves neceſſaries, to procuring with their own hands food and raiment. Thus letters are but one part, and that far from being the moſt conſiderable part, of the Inſtitution; and the name of School gives but an imperfect idea of the deſign. The whole plan conſiſts of a School, a Workhouſe, a Farm, a Garden, a Houſhold; each of which ſupplies its proper objects and materials, to art and labour, to capacity and diligence: an excellent plan, highly worthy of imitation, whenever it can be adopted with propriety and advantage. Their Schooling is indeed properly an apprenticeſhip to labour, to order, to regularity, to obedience to ſuperiors, to the worſhip of God: its deſign is to induce habits of induſtry, of honeſty, of humility, of piety; to give them an early and laſting impreſſion, that a life of labour is to be their lot, and that 'in the ſweat of their face they muſt eat their bread;' a lot indeed, in various degrees, and in different manners, common to all the ſons of Adam, but which in its moſt obvious and ſtrict ſenſe muſt be theirs; in a word, to render them uſeful members of Society, dutiful Subjects, good Chriſtians, and good Proteſtants.

The utility of this deſign ſpeaks for itſelf, and the good effects of it cannot poſſibly be doubted.

From the nature of it, its progreſs muſt be gradual, its operation ſlow, its conſequences in reſpect of the public for ſome time perhaps imperceptible; yet are they not the leſs ſure. This at leaſt is apparent, that above Two Thouſand children at a time are actually received, maintained, inſtructed in theſe Schools; and near Four Hundred infants are conſtantly ſupported in the Provincial Nurſeries, in order to be tranſplanted into the Schools at a proper age; all, not only reſcued from the ſnares of idleneſs and vice, and of the moſt ſlaviſh ſuperſtition, and probably from penury and wretchedneſs, but furniſhed with abilities of gaining an honeſt livelihood, and with a proper knowledge of their duty: that within leſs than Forty years, (in the firſt part of which period, during the infancy of the Charity, little of this ſort could be done,) above Four Thouſand have been placed in ſervices and apprenticeſhips, and put in a way of earning their bread with comfort, and perhaps of thriving in the world: that the apprentices have not only been received gratuitouſly, but even with a ſtipulation of reward at the expiration of their ſervice; a clear proof of the reputation of the Schools, and of the acknowledged uſefulneſs of this mode of diſcipline: that near Three Hundred of them on their Marriage with Proteſtants have received a donation from the Society, wiſely beſtowed to encourage and aſſiſt them in eſtabliſhing families. Theſe are certain and palpable benefits, which muſt have an immediate influence; and though at firſt they may ſeem loſt in the great maſs into which they are thrown, yet, continually accumulating and increaſing, they muſt have in due time a ſenſible effect upon it: like the operation of the Goſpel itſelf in its gradual increaſe from ſmall beginnings; which our Saviour aptly compared to a little leaven covered up in a large veſſel of meal, and fermenting by degrees and mixing with it, till the whole is leavened. To reform a nation, to change the manners of a people, to ſubdue inveterate prejudices, to introduce new principles, and new modes of thinking and acting, is a work that requires time, and patience, and perſeverance: if the deſign be good, and the means wiſely deviſed, and ſteadily purſued, and the whole diligently and faithfully executed, let us truſt the ſucceſs with GOD; and let us not doubt, that 'He, who ſupplieth ſeed to the ſower, and bread for food from the ſeed ſown, will ſupply and multiply the ſeed which you ſow, and increaſe the fruits of your charitable work.'

As we are here leſs immediately engaged in the execution of this deſign, and are at too great a diſtance to judge of the propriety and fidelity with which it is carried on, otherwiſe than in a general general view, and from conſequences rather than facts, I ſhall not preſume to enter into a detail of the methods of conducting it, or to give an account of the care and attention with which they are purſued. Every thing muſt principally depend on the careful inſpection of the Local Committees; and on the conſtant attention of the General Committee, which receives information from them, and has the chief direction of the whole. To their prudence and diligence it muſt be aſcribed, that this great work has been ſo ſucceſsfully carried on hitherto; and, preſuming upon the continuance of their faithful and zealous endeavours, we have the beſt grounds to hope for its future ſucceſs.

But from a ſtate of the accounts of the Society it appears, how properly their care has been lately employed in reducing expences; and in making ſome alterations, which in that view the exigence of their affairs required. Theſe have been managed with ſo much prudence, as well as frugality, as conſiderably to leſſen the expence, without diminiſhing the benefit of the Charity. Some Schools, diſadvantageouſly ſituated, or otherwiſe ill circumſtanced, have been diſcontinued; and the children tranſplanted, and placed in others; ſo that though the number of the Schools is leſſened, the number of the Children educated continues the ſame. Indeed the Society is under a neceſſity cefity of adopting every frugal meaſure conſiſtent with the purpoſes of the Inſtitution. So far from being encouraged to enlarge their views, and to carry them to that extent, which the nature and importance of the object requires; they find themſelves, on the contrary, obliged even to contract their plan, and to decline the voluntary offers of generous benefactors, from an inability on their part of cooperating with them, and carrying their pious deſigns into execution. The late great increaſe of the price of proviſions, and of all the neceſſaries of life, in that kingdom as well as in our own, has in effect conſiderably reduced the funds of the Society, which were never in any degree proportionable to the magnitude and importance of the deſign; and hath made them now fall ſo greatly ſhort of its unavoidable expences, that we are obliged to apply for aſſiſtance to the liberality of private perſons, and to the bounty of the public. The pious and the humane will reflect on the great advantages reached out by it to the children of the poor and needy; reſcuing them from lazineſs and vice, from ignorance and ſuperſtition, from imminent danger of miſery and perdition both of body and ſoul: the Legiſlature of Ireland will in their wiſdom conſider, that the increaſe of the wealth, the ſtrength, the population, the ſecurity, of their country, is the great object of this undertaking; and and may perhaps no longer ſuffer ſo important a national concern to ſubſiſt on funds for much the moſt part caſual and precarious, and which are found by experience to be not only inſufficient for the improvement and completion of this excellent work, but greatly inadequate even to its preſent neceſſary demands *.

And may God open the hearts of the rich, incline the wills of the great, and guide the counſels of the wiſe, to the ſupport, the improvement, and the extenſion, of every generous deſign, charitably formed, prudently deviſed, and faithfully executed, for the good of our country, and for the glory of his holy name. Such, we preſume, in an eminent degree, is this Inſtitution. Scarce any other example can be given, in which the views of Religion and Policy are ſo juſtly connected, and ſo intimately united. The intereſts of

* From the Eſtimates ſubjoined to the Petition of the Society, preſented to the Houſe of Commons of Ireland in the laſt Seſſion, it appears, that the Expences of the Society for Two years are at an average about — — — — — £28,000
The Funds ditto about — — — — 11,000
Deficiency in Two years — — — — 17,000

of the Kingdom of Ireland are more immediately concerned: but whatever affects the proſperity, the ſtrength, and ſafety of that kingdom, muſt greatly influence the welfare of our own; and though we were not at all concerned on account of any union of national intereſt, or temporal advantage, yet the common motives of humanity, and the ſacred obligations of Religion, ought to excite our zeal in this good work, of relieving our brethren, of aſſiſting the poor, and inſtructing the ignorant. Let thoſe, who are more immediately concerned, earneſtly engage in the promotion of it, as true lovers of their country, juſtly ſolicitous for its civil and its ſpiritual welfare: let us, as friends, fellow-ſubjects, and fellow-Proteſtants, heartily concur with them; "for our brethren and companions ſake, let us wiſh them proſperity; yea, becauſe of the houſe of the LORD our GOD, let us ſeek to do them good."

of the Kingdom of Ireland are more immediately concerned: but whatever affects the property, the strength, and safety of that kingdom, must greatly influence the welfare of our own; and though we were not at all concerned on account of any union of national interest, or temporal advantage, yet the common motives of humanity and the sacred obligations of Religion, ought to excite our zeal in this good work, of relieving our brethren, of aiding the poor, and instructing the ignorant. Let those, who are more immediately concerned, earnestly engage in the promotion of it, as true lovers of their country, justly solicitous for its credit and its spiritual welfare: let us, as friends, fellow-subjects, and fellow-Protestants, heartily concur with them; for our brethren and companions sake, let us wish them prosperity; yea, because of the house of the LORD our GOD, let us seek to do them good.

AN ABSTRACT OF HIS MAJESTY'S ROYAL CHARTER,

For Erecting and Promoting English Protestant Schools, in IRELAND.

GEORGE the Second, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c.—To all Persons to whom these Presents shall come—Forasmuch as we have received Information by the Petition of the Lord Primate, Lord Chancellor, Archbishops, Noblemen, Bishops, Judges, Gentry, and Clergy of our Kingdom of Ireland, That in many Parts of the said Kingdom there are great Tracts of Land almost intirely inhabited by Papists, who are kept by their Clergy in great Ignorance of the true Religion, and bred up in great Disaffection to the Government: That the erecting of English Protestant Schools in those Places, is absolutely necessary for their Conversion; that the English Parish Schools already established are not sufficient for that Purpose; nor can the Residence of the Parochial Clergy only, fully answer that End.

To the Intent therefore that the Children of the Popiſh, and other poor Natives of the ſaid Kingdom may be inſtructed in the English Tongue, and the Principles of true Religion and Loyalty; and that ſo good a Deſign may the more effectually be carried on; The Lord Lieutenant, and ſome of the Chief Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy of the ſaid Kingdom, are appointed Commiſſioners to execute the Purpoſes of this Charter, and have a Power to elect others in the Room of their deceaſed Members; and are conſtituted a Corporation or Body Politic, by the Name of The Incorporated SOCIETY in Dublin for promoting Engliſh Proteſtant Schools in Ireland: And are capable to receive and enjoy in Fee, and in Perpetuity, any Manors, Lands, Tenements, &c. the ſame not exceeding the Value of Two Thouſand Pounds per Annum, and any Sum or Sums of Money, that ſhall be given them by any Perſon or Perſons, Bodies Politic and Corporate, &c. to be applied for the Eſtabliſhing and Supporting Engliſh Proteſtant Schools, in ſuch Places of the Kingdom as they ſhall think proper.

The ſaid Society is impowered to nominate and appoint Schoolmaſters and Schoolmiſtreſſes, to be approved and licenſed by the Archbiſhops and Biſhops reſpectively, to continue during the Pleaſure of the ſaid Society; who are to be ſupported by the Society and provided with all things neceſſary for the Inſtruction of the poor Children in the Principles of the Proteſtant Religion, Reading, Writing and Arithmetic; as likewiſe with proper Books, and all neceſſary Materials for teaching them Husbandry, Houſewifery, Trades, Manufactures, &c. in order to bring them up to Virtue, Labour and Induſtry.

The Society is likewiſe impowered to nominate Perſons to receive Subſcriptions, Benefactions, &c. in any Part of his Majeſty's Dominions, from all well-diſpoſed Perſons. The Society may elect and admit Subſcribers (being Proteſtants) to be Members to aſſiſt in carrying on the Deſign aforeſaid.

PROCEEDINGS

for promoting English Protestant Schools in IRELAND, from the Opening of His late MAJESTY'S Royal Charter, February 9, 1733, to March 25, 1773.

THE Original Design of this Society is well known to have been principally formed by the late Right Reverend Doctor Henry Maule, Lord Bishop of Dromore, afterwards of Meath; which being highly approved and encouraged by the then Lords Justices, and a great Number of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, of the Commons, the Clergy, and principal Gentlemen of the Kingdom, His late Majesty, upon their humble Petition, was graciously pleased in 1733, through the favourable Interposition of his Grace the late Duke of Dorset, then Lord Lieutenant, to grant His Royal Charter of Incorporation for the Erecting and Supporting of Schools, wherein the Children of Papists and other poor Natives might be instructed in the English Tongue, and the Principles of true Religion and Loyalty, and trained up to the Practice of Industry and Labour.

In Pursuance of which, Charter-Schools have from Time to Time been erected by the Society in several Parts of the Kingdom, under the immediate Direction of Local Committees of the principal Gentlemen and Clergy, who are appointed to inspect and examine into the Instruction and Employment of the Children, their Food and State of Health; the Sufficiency and Diligence of the Masters and Mistresses, and all other Particulars relative to the Oeconomy and Management of the School, and report the same to the Society; besides which, the Schools are frequently visited and inspected by the several Members of the Society, as they have Opportunity.

The Society have the Satisfaction to observe, that their Scheme of dividing the Childrens Time between the Learning necessary for their future State of Life, and such gentle Work as is suited to their present tender Age, hath been successfully adopted by many Charity-Schools in Dublin and other Places; whereby the Benefit of the Institution hath probably been extended far beyond the Expectation of those who at first most warmly promoted it. But there is one Part of their Discipline peculiar to the Society, the Necessity of which ariseth from the peculiar Circumstances of the Children whom they receive into their Care; which is, the transplanting of them into such Schools as are most remote from their Popish Relations. This is their standing and invariable Rule; and the more effectually to secure its good Success, they do not fail to recommend to the several Local Committees, and strictly to enjoin the Schoolmasters, by all possible Means, to guard against and prevent an Intercourse or Communication between the Children, and any of the Priests, or other Popish Inhabitants in the Neighbourhood of the Schools.

The great Assistances, whereby the Society have from Time to Time been enabled to carry this extensive Design into Execution, have been annually published, not only for the Information of the Public, but in Gratitude to the pious and charitable Benefactors.

His late Majesty was graciously pleased in the Year 1739, to honour the Society with His Royal Countenance, by a Donation of One Thousand Pounds, and an annual Grant of the like Sum on the Establishment of this Kingdom. And His present Majesty has likewise been graciously pleased to continue to the Society the same Mark of His Royal Favour; which they humbly beg Leave, with the most respectful Duty, thankfully to acknowledge.

The

The Parliament of Ireland, with that laudable Zeal for the Advancement of the Proteſtant Religion and the Benefit of their Country, by which their Proceedings have ever been diſtinguiſhed, have alſo been pleaſed to take the Society under their Protection, and to grant to their Uſe the Produce of a Tax on Hawkers and Pedlars, as well as ſeveral conſiderable Sums of Money, for the Support of the Schools, and to enable them to erect Nurſeries for the Reception of Children too young to be admitted into the Schools.

The Parliament have likewiſe given an additional and moſt honourable Teſtimony of their Confidence in the Society, by veſting in them the Eſtates granted by Richard, late Earl of Ranelagh, for the Endowment of Charity-Schools, in the Towns of Athlone and Roſcommon.

The Contributions of private Perſons, both in Great Britain and Ireland, have alſo been very conſiderable; as may appear by the annual Account of Subſcriptions and Donations received, for the Erection and Endowment of the ſeveral Schools. From the Commencement of the Inſtitution to November 1772, the Sum of £4881 : 8 : 6 hath been remitted by the Correſponding Society in London, to whoſe zealous and moſt uſeful Endeavours for promoting this Charitable Inſtitution, as well by communicating their Sentiments and Advice upon all Occaſions, as by contributing and procuring Benefactions, the Society are too highly indebted, not to embrace with the greateſt Pleaſure every Opportunity of profeſſing their Obligations, and returning their moſt hearty Thanks.

N° XLVI. ROSCOMMON.

THE Eſtate of Richard, late Earl of Ranelagh, deſigned by him for the Support of Charity Schools for Forty poor native Proteſtant Children at Roſcommon, and as many at Athlone, has by Act of Parliament been vested in the Society for that Purpoſe. As none of the Eſtate was convenient for a School at Roſcommon, the Society hired an Houſe in that Town, till they could provide proper Land to build on, in which a School was opened in June, 1762, for Forty poor Children, Natives of that Place, purſuant to the Direction of the Founder.

The Honourable General Sandford having demiſed to the Society, in Perpetuity, Forty Acres of Land, near the Town of Roſcommon, at an eaſy Rent; an Houſe is built thereon, and Forty poor native Children have been received therein.

N° XLVII. ATHLONE.

PART of the Earl of Ranelagh's Eſtate being near the Town of Athlone, the Society have built an Houſe thereon, and accommodated it with Twenty Acres of very valuable Land; in which a School was opened in May, 1764, for the Reception of Forty poor native Children.

N° XLVIII. NEWMARKET, County of CLARE.

SIR Donat O'Brien, Bart. having charged his Eſtate of Newmarket, in the County of Clare, with a Rent Charge for ever of 18l. per Annum, for the Inſtruction and Support of Twenty-four Charity Boys in the ſaid Town; and the late Sir Edward O'Brien, Bart. Grandſon and Heir of the ſaid Sir Donat, and Sir Lucius O'Brien, Bart. eldeſt Son and Heir of the late Sir Edward, finding the ſaid Endowment very inſufficient to anſwer the Intention of the ſaid Sir Donat, and being deſirous to have the ſame carried into Execution, have granted to the Society Twenty-four Acres of Land, Rent-free in Perpetuity, (to the Amount of 18l. yearly) and the Society have erected and opened the School, which is augmented to Forty Children.

N° XLIX. CASTLEBAR, County of MAYO.

SIR Charles Bingham, Bart. in order to have a School erected in this Place, for the Accommodation of Twenty Boys and Twenty Girls, hath granted to the Society Two Acres of Land, Plantation Meaſure, Rent-free in Perpetuity; and alſo a Leaſe of Twenty Acres more, like Meaſure, for Three Lives, at a Pepper Corn yearly; the whole Lands, (One Acre with another) being worth upwards of Ten Shillings per Acre yearly. Sir Charles agreed to renew the Leaſe at any Time during his Life, without Fine, and alſo to compleat the Building of the School Houſe and Offices for the Sum of 500l. which is paid. The School Houſe is finiſhed, and Forty Children admitted therein.

PROPOSALS for NEW SCHOOLS Accepted.

No I. FETHARD, County of TIPPERARY.

THE Corporation of Fethard hath granted to the Society Forty-two Acres of Land, Plantation Meaſure, in Perpetuity, at the yearly Acknowledgment of Five Shillings, Sterling, worth Six Shillings per Acre, for erecting a Charter School thereon, within the Liberties of the Town, and to appropriate a Rent of 13l. a Year, for Twenty-one Years, towards the Support of the School, when erected.

The Reverend Morgan Hickey, deceaſed, bequeathed 40ol. to be paid when a School ſhall be built to accommodate Twenty Children. And 33l. has been ſubſcribed by the neighbpuring Gentlemen. The Society formerly accepted this Propoſal.

No II. GLENAVY, County of ANTRIM.

THE late Reverend Mr Jacob Henderſon, Rector of Queen Ann's Pariſh, in Prince George's County, in the Province of Maryland, in America, in order to have a School erected at or near this Place, paid to the Society the Sum of 1000l. for which his Widow received an Annuity of 50l. per Annum during her Life. He alſo gave 100l. more by a Bond aſſigned to the Society.

The Right Honourable the Earl of Hertford has ſignified his Intention of appropriating to this School his Subſcription of 20l. yearly, and of perpetuating it; and that he will accommodate the Society with Lands. The Society formerly accepted this Propoſal.

No III. MONASTEREVEN, County of KILDARE.

THE Right Honourable Edward, late Earl of Drogheda, and the Right Honourable Charles, now Earl of Drogheda, having propoſed to grant the Society Two Acres in Perpetuity, of the Lands called the Curraghane's, Rent-free; and alſo Forty Acres of the Lands of Kill, near Monaſtereven, in the County of Kildare, for Three Lives renewable for ever, without Fine, at the yearly Rent of 7s. per Acre, for a Charter School, for the Reception of Fifty Children.

Tee Society formerly accepted this Propoſal.

N° IV. WOODLAWN, County of GALWAY.

FRederick Trench, Esq; in order to have a School erected at this Place, hath proposed to the Society to grant Two Acres of Land in Perpetuity, Rent-free; and also a Lease of Fifteen Acres more in Perpetuity, Rent-free during his Life, and after his Death, at such Rent as the Society shall think adviseable; he hath also proposed to build the School House and Offices, for a Sum of 300l. on which he will engage to expend the Sum of 500l. but believes they will cost him nearer 600l. The Society formerly accepted this Proposal.

N° V. CLOGHER, County of TYRONE.

SIR George Saville, Bart. in order to have a School erected at this Place, hath proposed to the Society to grant a Lease of Twenty Acres of Land for Three Lives, renewable for ever, at 2s. 6d. per Acre, per Annum, and a Pepper Corn Fine on each Renewal. The Lands are now let to Tenants at Will, at the yearly Rent of 10s. per Acre, and are estimated to be well worth near double that Rent.

The Rev. Dr Woodward, Dean of Clogher, hath proposed to the Society to grant Two Acres of his Glebe Land, Rent-free in Perpetuity, for the Site of the intended School House and Offices; and also to give a sufficient Quantity of Bog Land for Firing for the School, during his Incumbency.
